Upgrading from 4G to 5G Wireless Broadband

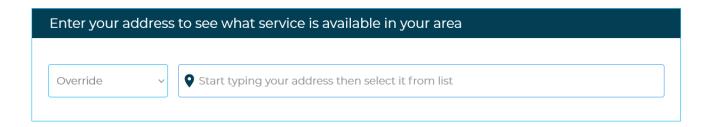

Making the jump from 4G to 5G wireless broadband isn't just about faster speeds—it's a major upgrade in connectivity, reliability, and capacity. Whether you're streaming ultra-high-definition content, gaming online with near-instant responsiveness, or running a household full of connected devices, 5G can make a real difference.

Here's how to upgrade step-by-step:

1. Check 5G Coverage

Before upgrading, make sure 5G is available at your address. While our network is expanding quickly, coverage can vary by location.

- Check your address on our product page Enter your address to see if it's 5G ready.
- If 5G isn't available yet, you can continue using our 4G wireless broadband and be ready to switch the moment coverage reaches you.

2. Choose Your New Plan

Our 5G plans offer different speed tiers—perfect for everything from casual browsing to ultra-fast, high-demand usage. Visit our website to compare options and start your order.

3. Get the Right Modem

You'll need a compatible modem to connect to the 5G network.

- Bring your own Optus 5G modem If you already have one, you can request a SIM-only plan. Talk to our team if the website isn't allowing you and we'll place the order for you.
- Get one from us We'll supply a 5G modem rent-free for as long as your service remains active.

5. Activate and Finalise the Switch

- When you receive your 5G modem and SIM, activate the SIM online via our website.
- Once your new 5G service is connected, cancel your old 4G service to avoid being charged for both.
- Return any rented 4G modem within 21 days of cancelling your old service to avoid being charged its retail value. We'll email you the return instructions.

That's it!
